ABOUT

Copihue

LOCATION

Southampton, England, United Kingdom

Copihue was inspired by traditional racing yachts and still is one of the most elegant modern-day classic yachts that Hoek Design produced. So much planning and thought went into her that it took more than two years to design her.

Copihue is a 22.8 m cutter named after the Chilean national flower. The combination of her low coach roof, long, flush decks and pretty sheerline makes the yacht the most pleasing to the eye in her size.

Traditional lines and an overall size that is manageable by his family without professional crew were vital requirements for the owner.

Not only is Copihue Dutch built and fitted out to the highest of specifications, but her interior and exterior wood work reflect in the detailing and fitting out that she represents the best of Dutch yacht building.
