ABOUT

Grady-White Freedom 275 Twin Engine

There's something refreshing about a 2020 Grady-White Freedom 275 finished in Seaport Blue – it's the kind of boat that looks just as sharp tied up at Watergate Marina as it does cutting across Galveston Bay. Power comes from twin Yamaha F200 engines, giving you the quick, confident acceleration to get out past the Kemah boardwalk and into open water without any fuss, while leaving plenty of range in reserve for a full day on the water.

This Freedom 275 is built for the kind of versatile boating Houston-area owners love. Running down the Houston Ship Channel toward Morgan's Point, or crossing over to Seabrook for lunch on the water, the side bar and bow cover keep things comfortable and dry when conditions kick up a little chop. Thinking about a slower weekend pulling someone up on skis near Eagle Point? The ski pylon has you covered, and the sun platform insert with cushion turns the bow into prime real estate for soaking up the Texas sun once you've dropped anchor.

Grady-White is known for thoughtful touches, and this one doesn't disappoint – the aft tonneau cover and bow cover make it easy to button the boat up after a day exploring Clear Lake or anchoring off Red Bluff, and the Premium Experience package adds a nice layer of comfort-focused upgrades throughout the boat. When the sun goes down, the underwater lights turn the swim platform into a glowing gathering spot, whether you're anchored for the evening near Kemah or just enjoying a quiet night tied up at the dock.

Whether it's a sunrise run out toward Galveston or an easy afternoon cruising past the Houston skyline from the water, this Freedom 275 is ready to make the Houston boating lifestyle feel effortless. It's a boat built to handle the bay's moods while keeping everyone aboard comfortable, dry, and ready for whatever the day brings.
