ABOUT

Izumi

LOCATION

Fort Lauderdale, Florida, United States

IZUMI is hull number six of the Palmer Johnson 120 SportYacht, the model that started the PJ SportYacht series. Nuvolari Lenard drew both the exterior and the interior, and the naval architecture was developed with Donald L. Blount & Associates. The result is a 37.91m aluminium planing hull with a GRP superstructure, built to Lloyd's Register class, that looks fast at anchor and is fast underway.

Twin MTU 12V4000 M90 engines give her a cruising speed of 24 knots and a top speed of 28 knots. Slow down to 14 knots and the range stretches to approximately 900 nautical miles. TRAC dual-fin stabilisers keep things steady for guests along the way.

Accommodation is planned for seven guests: a Master forward, two VIP cabins aft, and a day room that converts to an additional berth. Five crew live in three separate cabins, including the captain's, so the guest areas stay just that. Sound in the master and salon comes from a Bang & Olufsen system, and Starlink keeps everyone connected at sea.

The superstructure hides the toys. A forward tender garage with a hydraulically operated cover and a 1,000 kg davit houses her Williams Sportjet 435, keeping the decks clear and the profile clean.

IZUMI has been looked after properly. Her most recent refit was completed at Lauderdale Marine Center in December 2024, following a 2023 service programme that included new shaft housings, bearings and seals, repitched propellers, a new hydraulic pump, new air conditioning components, sanded teak decks, new exterior cushions, and refinished interior wood and leather. She was last antifouled in November 2025.

She lies in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, and is available for viewing.
