PERFORMANCE & HELM

At the heart of this Scout is a triple Yamaha F350 power package producing 1,050 horsepower. With approximately 425 hours, the engines provide the kind of power and offshore capability expected from a boat of this caliber.

The helm is exceptionally well laid out and equipped for serious cruising. A triple-screen Garmin electronics package provides the captain with a large, clean navigation and systems interface, while Yamaha joystick control makes close-quarters maneuvering and docking substantially easier.

Triple helm seats provide comfortable seating for the captain and companions, and the expansive helm design reinforces the upscale feel of the LXF series.

SEAKEEPER STABILIZATION

One of the most desirable options aboard this 380 LXF is its Seakeeper gyro stabilization system.

No matter what your doing on the water, Seakeeper stabilization can dramatically reduce uncomfortable boat movement and adds another level of comfort to an already impressive platform.

For buyers comparing similarly equipped 380 LXFs, this is an option worth having.

COCKPIT

The 380 LXF provides a large, highly versatile cockpit capable of transitioning easily between entertaining, cruising and fishing.

The aft cockpit features fold-down seating, allowing the area to quickly convert from comfortable guest seating to an open working cockpit.

A substantial integrated wet bar/prep station behind the helm provides a convenient entertainment center, while extensive storage throughout the cockpit keeps gear organized and out of the way.

BOW & ENTERTAINING

Moving forward, the 380 LXF becomes an impressive luxury day boat.

The large forward-facing lounge provides comfortable seating underway, while the expansive bow area offers additional seating, storage and room for guests to spread out.

Premium upholstery, stainless-steel hardware, integrated speakers and carefully finished surfaces throughout the boat demonstrate why Scout's LXF line has developed such a strong following among buyers looking for something beyond the traditional center-console experience.

CABIN & PRIVATE HEAD

One of the major advantages of the 380 LXF is what you don't see from the dock.

Below deck is a private cabin and head, giving guests amenities rarely found on a traditional center console.

The cabin provides a comfortable place to get out of the weather, change clothes, relax or spend the night aboard, while the head makes the boat more practical for couples, families and guests spending a full day on the water.

These accommodations dramatically expand the way the 380 LXF can be used—from offshore runs and fishing trips to entertaining, day cruising and weekend getaways.

CUSTOM APPEARANCE

This boat makes a statement before you ever step aboard.

The custom metallic hull color, coordinated Yamaha engine finish and neutral-toned upholstery give the boat an upscale appearance that is very different from the typical white center console.

Combined with Scout's distinctive lines and extensive stainless-steel detailing, the result is a 380 LXF with a sophisticated, custom look.
