GENERAL DESCRIPTION

The 2000 Skipjack 262 Flying Bridge is a "West Coast legend" that defies physics by packing the soul of a 30-foot offshore canyon runner into a legally trailerable 8' 6" beam. Built with a massive, hand-laid fiberglass layup, it is prized for a 64-square-foot cockpit that offers an unobstructed battlefield for serious bluewater anglers. Unlike many top-heavy small flybridges, the 262 maintains a remarkably low center of gravity and a sharp entry, allowing it to punch through steep chop while keeping the captain high enough to spot breaking fish. It remains the "gold standard" for the weekend warrior who demands a rugged, go-anywhere platform that can be towed to the best bite one day and provide a comfortable overnight stay at the islands the next. Don't miss the sale on this rugged 26-foot sportfish.
